A TERRIBLE TRAGEDY

Awful Disaster at Close of Week of Festivities.

SHRINER TRAIN WRECKED

Thirty-Two Killed and Many Others Badly Injured.

On the last day of what had been one of the most successful and joyous conclaves of the Nobles of the Mystic Shrine in the history of the country, an appalling railroad accident occurred which has cast a gloom not only upon all members of this great organization, but upon the entire community as well.

A special Shriner train, bearing about 250 Shriners and their families, who had been visiting the old mission at Santa Barbara, left the latter place at 12:10 p. m. on their return trip to their homes. This train carried Rajah Temple, of Reading, Pa., and Ismaila Temple, of Buffalo, N. Y., besides a few members of the Al Koran Temple, of Cleveland, Ohio. At Honda, a siding on the coast line of the Southern Pacific, 168 miles north of Los Angeles, the train left the track, and in an instant the engine, baggage cars and diner were crushed into fragments, and the two following sleepers telescoped, the rest of the cars keeping the track. Thirty-two people were in the dining car and of these none escaped.

The terrible scenes which followed are beyond description. Brave men and women, many of them badly injured, set about the work of extricating the dead and dying from the mass of ruins, and nobly and tenderly did they perform their duty amid heartrending scenes.

To add to the horror of the occasion and the suffering of the wounded, was the brutal delay of the road in sending relief. For hours the party was left on the scene of the disaster, while train after train, north-bound, passed them by, it being more than six hours before a relief train bearing doctors and nurses arrived on the ground, and hours more before it was returned to Santa Barbara. Here everything was done to alleviate the sufferings of the wounded and grief stricken party. Potentate M. H. Flint and a large delegation of Al Malaikah Temple, of Los Angeles, together with the Imperial Potentate and members of the Imperial Council were at Santa Barbara hours before the arrival of the relief train from the wreck, and took charge when it came, caring for the injured and making necessary arrangements for the return of dead to their former homes.

The funeral train bearing the bodies of the dead, with their relatives and a guard from each temple, left Santa Barbara at a little after 10 o'clock Tuesday and proceeded to San Luis Obispo, where ten more bodies were taken aboard, together with the relatives and friends, and the train proceeded on its long and sad journey to the East.

The coroner's jury stated in its verdict that it was unable, from the evidence presented, to determine the exact cause of the disaster.

The greatest indignation was expressed at the treatment received at the hands of the Southern Pacific company in allowing the victims to remain for hours without assistance of any kind, and very effective retribution is promised, as is evidenced by the following among many other expressions:

William D. Doherty, police commissioner of Buffalo, stated that the wreck survivors of Ismaila Temple and Rajah Temple of Reading, would do nothing to express their feelings officially until they arrived home, when there would certainly be some action taken. "Talking of soulless corporations," he said, the Southern Pacific is certainly the limit."

Jole H. Prescott, who threatened to thrash Dr. Taylor, the Southern Pacific surgeon in charge of the relief train, and the entire train crew if the survivors and the dead were not moved off the siding, as reported in the Express, declared that while the Southern Pacific officials here were, perhaps, doing all in their power to assist and rectify the wrongs done the Shriners, that the railroad would certainly feel the wrath of all the Masonic organizations in America. "A resolution has been proposed censuring the Southern Pacific," he went on, "but while we are busy taking care of the injured and preparing the dead to take home, we will do nothing. As soon, however, as we go East, it will be adopted, and copies of it will be scattered throughout the country. We are determined that the Southern Pacific shall be punished as severely as it lies in our power to do so."

VISIT NEW SCHOOL

Public Exercises Held This Afternoon—Interesting Program.

Prof. Coates and the teachers of the public school have been making preparations for a public entertainment to celebrate the occupation of the new school house. Sierra Madre has one of the most attractive school buildings of its size in Southern California, and our citizens will today be given an opportunity to inspect it and at the same time enjoy an excellent program which has been prepared for their benefit.

At the afternoon session of the school the children will have exercises in the various rooms. At 3 o'clock a recess will be taken, and after a brief intermission addresses will be delivered by County Superintendent Keppel and by Mr. E. T. Pierce, teacher of the first public school in Sierra Madre, some twenty-five years ago. Mr. Pierce is still a resident of the city, and his talk will be of much interest on this occasion.

Vocal and instrumental music will form an interesting part of the program. Miss Cook and Capt. Osgood are down for numbers and several other interesting features are expected. Light refreshments will be served.

PRIZE ESSAY CONTEST.

Winners of Prizes On Sierra Madre As a Home City.

Laurel Steinberger, 1st Prize, $3.00

Groff Brown, 2d " 2.00

Webster Vannier, 3d " 1.00

The News some time ago offered cash prizes to children of Sierra Madre, under fifteen years of age, for the best essays on the subject of Sierra Madre as a home city. The response was limited until, under the encouragement of Prof. Coates and the teachers, the children of the public school took the matter up, when a large number of papers were received.

Miss Campbell was made chairman of the judges and selected Misses Cook and Webster as her assistants. This board awarded the prizes as follows:

Laurel Steinberger, first prize.

Webster Vannier, third prize.

On receipt of the papers the name was cut off or erased, and the paper given a number, only the age of the writer being given. The name and number were entered in a book and kept in possession of the News, the judges thus knowing the age but not the name of the writer. Many papers of much merit were received in addition to those written by the winners of the prizes, and from these the News will from time to time select some for publication.

We return thanks to the ladies who so kindly acted as judges, and to the teachers for their assistance.

Many counterfeit silver dollars are said to be in circulation in the southern part of the state. Most of them bear date of 1889, and are of good workmanship.

QUESTION OF LICENSE

Application by Hotel for License to Serve Wine at Table

AROUSES MUCH OPPOSITION

Interesting Debate at Last Meeting of Board of Trustees.

At the last meeting of the city trustees an ordinance licensing the sale of wine and beer in hotels and restaurants was introduced, read, and referred to the committee on ordinances. The ordinance was introduced as a result of the petition of the proprietor of one of the city hotels for a license to serve wine and beer with meals only. A very lively opposition developed after the application was made and a petition protesting against the granting of this or any other license for the sale of liquor in the city was circulated and obtained about 275 names. This petition was presented to the board by Rev. James M. Campbell of the First Congregational church who, in support of the same, delivered the following address:

"To the Honorable Board of Trustees of Sierra Madre.

"Gentlemen: In presenting this petition against granting a hotel liquor license, allow me to say that it represents the overwhelming sentiment of Sierra Madre. In a straight canvass about five per cent were found in favor of granting a license or neutral to it; while ninety-five per cent were decidedly opposed to it.

"In this popular test vote of 276 names which has been taken it will be found that a little more than one-half are those of women. I have been told that some one sneeringly remarked, 'What do such names amount to anyway?' As if our mothers, wives, and sisters had no interest in the removing of legalized temptation from the path of their loved ones.

"Allow me to present to your honorable board in the briefest manner possible seven reasons why you should not grant this license.

"First. The first reason is that what is really asked for is not a hotel license at all, but a restaurant license. Now, when a hotel license is asked for it generally means a license to furnish liquor at meals to bona fide guests, in places of fifty or more rooms. In this case it means that anyone coming in from the street can be supplied with intoxicating drinks under the cover of a meal. I have every reason to believe that the present management of the Hotel Shirley would endeavor to conform to the letter and spirit of the law; but the privilege granted to them could not well be denied to others, and it is not difficult to foresee what the end would be.

"Second. That the granting of such a

California Has Many Things of Value Beside Climate, Superior as That Is

Industrial Development Now in Its Infancy, But Vastly Richer
Than Any Eastern State or Foreign Land.

The Manufacture of Soda From Crude Deposits Possible in This Country Only.
Pacific Coast Soda Company Offers Its Stock With a Profit
Earning of 25 Per Cent Per Annum.

There is no question about the present extent and the great growing importance of the commercial side of the Coast States. Manufacturing has just begun to get a foot-hold. A vast number of great industrial enterprises will be launched each year. The conversion of natural resources into finished products offers the largest opening to capital, and in this regard, the work of the Pacific Coast Soda Company has the brightest prospect of any one of the several enterprises that are before the people today. For the past few weeks this new company has been offering its shares for 80c on the dollar to encourage early investors to take up with this proposition. This stock will earn 25 per cent. per annum on a most conservative computation. These same shares will be worth one hundred cents on the dollar, be selling for par before the month is out. This is absolutely true, because already the sale of shares has been sufficient to assure the concern capital with which to build its first plant on its six-acre site at Inglewood. Contracts have been awarded for the erection of this, the first unit of its chemical plant, plans of which may be seen at their general offices, 512 South Broadway, second floor. This first plant will be devoted to the manufacture of Soda Ash, a soda product used more largely in manufacturing than any one other chemical or substance in the whole range of raw materials. You can't find greater earning capacity for your money than presents itself in these shares. Listen: 80c per share, par value $1, and to which price they will be advanced after May 18th, positively shows a saving, or profit, of 25 per cent. in the cost of shares. On par value, these preferred shares have an accrued dividend earning of 7 per cent., but as you buy them for only 80c, you will actually earn 83-4 per cent. on your investment. This is not all these shares earn, for they participate equally in all the profits, but to show you that the management know the proposition will pay, and pay big, they say to you that they do not want one cent of profit until you have first received a good interest on your money, when they will then share the same profit if any be left, and after that the stock will share equally. 25 per cent. net profit is not a bit too much to expect from this industry. To illustrate this, you can readily figure out the probable earnings of, say, this first plant. Making soda ash it will have a capacity of 30 tons daily, 210 tons per week, and on the basis of present price of soda ash on this market of $28 per ton, there is an actual profit of fully $15 per ton; but to be extremely conservative, say only $10 per ton. 30 tons daily means $300 daily, and for the year's output there would be a profit of away over $100,000, and this first soda ash plant will not cost to exceed $30,000 to equip. But even if it cost $50,000, the profits would pay back the cost of two such plants each year, and thus, when the statement of a 25 per cent. profit is made you can see that it is a very safe one. Now, it will be the same way through the whole enterprise. Nature has piled up this crude soda out on the desert, as she has stored up the crude petroleum in the ground in certain places, and it takes only a limited amount of money, with lots of know-how, to make this fortune-producing. These crude sodas can be made into 8 principal products (and a by-product of 29 varieties as a side product), every one of which is a tremendous profit maker. That there is market for the finished soda ash, etc., the Pacific Coast Soda Company, at its general office, 512 South Broadway, can show you actual waiting orders for enough of it to keep two such plants as they contemplate building, busy every day of the year.

The markets of the Coast States last year used over 50 million pounds of soda products with a total value of $918,350.00 such as this industry will produce, and every ounce of it was shipped in from Eastern manufacturers who have to make their products through chemical processes and combinations. These vast natural beds of crude soda have long been known, but until the building of the Tonopah-Tidewater Railway it was simply impossible to get at them with profit. In addition to this present accessibility, the Pacific Coast Soda Company have perfected and patented both a machine and process for the quick, cheap conversion of this crude soda into pure soda, the only process of its kind on earth. They will show you a working model of this machine at their laboratory, second floor, Forve-Pettibone Bldg., 512 South Broadway. As to this 80c stock they are offering—it is not for the laggard, the fellow who puts off taking advantage of a good thing, but the man who wants the best his money can buy. 80c on the dollar for stocks that will earn 25 per cent. dividends are to be found only during the organization period of industrial enterprise. It makes no difference who or where you are, if you want to investigate this proposition you can do so, go over it with experts, both on the technical as well as financial side of it, and we defy any one to make a thorough inquiry who will not become just as enthusiastic over its profit-earning possibilities and its practical working, its marvelous trade opportunity, as we are ourselves. We invite every one to come to the general offices and look into this great new industry for California. We are making the liberal offer of half cash now, and the balance paid when our first plant is completed. This should assure you we mean business and also make the payments easier for you to handle. This price of 80c a share will be closed this Saturday night, May 18th. If your application for stock is dated Saturday, May 18th, and mailed to Mr. James Austin Larson, president, 512 South Broadway, even if it does not reach here till Tuesday, we will reserve as many shares as you indicate, but remember the 80c price closes Saturday, and your application must be on its way. The next price this stock will sell for will be $1, and maybe more, so you better get your share now.

FRIDAY, MAY 17, 1907.

There has been much agitation in Sierra Madre for some days past over the question of granting a license permitting the service of wine and beer with meals at hotels. An application for such a license was received by the Board of Trustees of the city at a recent meeting, and a petition was at once drafted and circulated by a number of citizens for signatures, requesting the council to refuse to grant a license of this nature to the applicant or to any other hotel or restaurant in the city. This petition, which was largely signed, was presented to the Board at its last meeting by Rev. James M. Campbell, who addressed the Board in its support. The question involved is undoubtedly one of importance and entitled to calm and careful consideration. In this particular case, we are informed, the application was for the privilege of serving wine and beer with meals only, at regular meal hours, bond to be given for the faithful carrying out of the provisions of the license, which could at any time be revoked for violation. If this would work any injury to the moral or material wellbeing of the city it would at least be reduced to a minimum under such restrictions. But if, as was feared by those presenting the petition, the granting of this license would prove an entering wedge for the establishment and indiscriminate licensing of the liquor business in our city, then the situation would indeed be serious.

But in any event, nothing is to be gained by threats or an attempt to hold a big stick over the heads of the Trustees. We believe the honorable gentlemen who compose the Board are as vitally interested in the prosperity and fair fame of our city as any of its residents. Nor have we any reason to suppose they would take any action that would be detrimental to its prosperity. We are of the opinion that the wisest course would be to submit the whole question to a vote of the people, and if this should be against the granting of any such license, we believe the Board would carry out the will of their constituents so recorded.

Beginning with the earthquake in the spring of last year, conditions in San Francisco have been pitiable in the extreme. That terrible disaster was enough to dishearten even the bravest, but with a spirit of indomitable courage and local patriotism her citizens set about the task of rebuilding their fallen city, determined to make the new San Francisco far excel the old in all respects. The results achieved in the short space of a year are a glowing tribute to the energy and enterprise of its citizens. But the earthquake was not the only trouble in store for her. More serious, perhaps, is the condition of municipal rottenness and graft which has come to light during the year to add to her troubles and discouragement, and this to be followed by the labor troubles and state of anarchy which obtains there at the present time. Whoever is to blame for the present situation, and there are usually two sides to every such state of affairs, it is none the less discouraging to the great mass of honest citizens, (for the great mass of the citizens are honest) who are earnestly striving for the welfare and upbuilding of their city, and who are jealous of her good reputation. Let the purging be thorough and effective, and then watchful care exercised that there may be no repetition. And the same care should be shown in the case of every municipality, more especially in the large centers of population.

Without bluster or noise, there is being held in Los Angeles this week the annual convention of the National Congress of Mothers. The importance of the work represented by this body of women is almost beyond estimation. In the hands of the mothers rests the training of the rising generation. We all owe a debt of gratitude to our mothers for their watchful care and wise counsel in our infancy and youth, and the painstaking and scientific work of the Congress of Mothers and the vast army of women affiliated with it in the practical study of child life and training will bear abundant fruit in the character of our future citizens.

The people of a nearby town have twice defeated a proposed issue of bonds to construct a public school, though all admit the necessity, because a fight is on as to the location of the new building. One faction wants it built on one side of the street and another faction on the other side. A third attempt will be made. If this is unsuccessful perhaps when the children of the town grow to maturity they will have sense enough, even though lacking in education, to settle the matter and build the school.

These factional fights are a curse to any community.

We would suggest that steps be taken for the celebration of Memorial day in our city, and if there is to be a celebration, no time should be lost in preparation for the event. We can never forget the obligation we are under to the men who made this great and united country possible; and furthermore, the duty of setting an example for the benefit of the coming generation in all matters of patriotism. Let the memory of our departed heroes ever be held sacred.

Excitement has subsided and the "wild man" continues to daily call for his mail at the Sierra Madre post office, and is physically and mentally normal. Tales of the Trail

By Henry W. Montee

The Old Carreta.

IN the Chamber of Commerce building in Los Angeles, there stands on exhibition a Pueblo Indian ox-cart, commonly known as the "old carreta." More than two hundred years old, it still shows no signs of immediate decay, although the wood is dry and hard, gnarled and cracked. It reminds one of the deacon's wonderful one-hoss shay. Naturally the old vehicle has a history, and here it is.

Away down in New Mexico, somewhere between the cities of Santa Fe and Las Vegas is situated the little village of Rio de Suca. About the year 1878 there lived in this village an aged Indian—San Alfonso by name—who belonged to the once mighty tribe of Pueblos. In earlier years, when Spaniards were plentiful and Americans scarce in that region, Alfonso had roamed with other warriors over the vast stretches of sun-heated sand, among the prickly cacti, and into the mountains of the North, hunting buffalo or trailing an enemy. Later, when a Catholic priest told the Indians the story of the White Christ, a number of warriors, young and old, suffered themselves to be baptized and swore allegiance to the new faith. Among these was Alfonso, who at that time was past middle life, and in 1878 had passed his eighty-fifth birthday.

Alfonso had in his possession a Pueblo Indian ox-cart—a huge, heavy, awkward thing, constructed exclusively of wood. The wheels were made from the trunks of sycamore trees. The body was of cottonwood; the pole of mesquite. The yoke, without bows, was lashed around the horns of oxen with rawhide.

This curious Aztec chariot had been used by Alfonso's great grandfather, and the former once exhibited it at a local "fiesta" as the oldest one in that region. It was thought to be the oldest of Indian manufacture in America, and to date from the introduction of cattle into New Mexico in the sixteenth century.

Pastoral Play.

In another column will be found the announcement of an event of considerable interest and novelty in the dramatic annals of Sierra Madre, namely the forthcoming Pastoral Play. Mr. E. W. Camp has kindly loaned the grounds of his residence for the purposes of this production, and a more beautiful setting could not be found. The play, arranged by Mr. H. E. Twose, deals with the romantic adventures of a band of Spanish Gypsies; rising at times to great dramatic intensity it is relieved by a rippling undercurrent of mirth and music.

The company includes the cream of local dramatic talent: Mrs. Bannatyne as the aged sorceress, Mrs. Camp as wilful La Gloria, Miss Edith Blumer as the gipsy queen, have been provided with parts especially suited to their abilities. In the capable hands of Miss Daisy Vannier the Duchess of Alcalá will stand out as a distinct comedy success, and the sweet voices of Misses

On the day on which the "fiesta" took place, there came to Rio de Suca an American army officer and explorer, Captain Chittenden by name. Captain Chittenden found the old Indian jealously guarding his treasured carreta in a shady spot by the roadside. In what manner or upon what terms he succeeded in gaining possession of the cart has not been ascertained,—but get it he did, and himself began its exhibition. He toured through all the Eastern states, then slowly worked his way westward through the "Bad Lands" of Dakota into Montana, and to the Coast, finally coming to Southern California. Here he remained during the presidential campaign of 1896.

Captain Chittenden was a great admirer of William McKinley and earnestly desired his election. Then, too, the captain was growing old and knew he must soon retire from active life. He wished to place his prized and valuable curio in the hands of those who would most appreciate it, and at the same time make it serve a peculiar purpose. Accordingly, on the day of the presidential election, he attached to the cart the following declaration:

"If the Hon. Wm. McKinley is this day chosen President of the United States, I shall regard it as the most important moral victory in the history of the nation since the election of the immortal Lincoln; and in honor of the event I will have my Aztec chariot or ancient Pueblo Indian cart drawn upon its own wheels to the city of Los Angeles, and there presented to the Chamber of Commerce for the people and their guests."

—Newton H. Chittenden."

IN Los Angeles a man was recently fined in the police court for being drunk. He claimed to be the victim of the patent medicine habit, and declared that his downfall was due to the drinking of a certain well advertised remedy which has the endorsement of fifty-seven retired Congressmen. According to the fellow's story, he began taking the stuff five years ago for a slight ailment, and the habit grew on him until he was unable to give it up.

Edna Staples and Marjorie Rice will be heard to great advantage. Mr. Horner will lend his magnetic presence to the part of a gipsy youth, and Mr. Shreeves will give an excellent portrayal of what is perhaps the most difficult role in the piece. Mr. Twose will be seen as a romantic lover, a distinct contrast to his previous appearances before local audiences. Mr. Frank Hart will preside at the piano. Amongst those ladies and gentlemen who have consented to merge their talents and identities in the show will be Mesdames Collins and Stevenson, Misses Blumer, Carter, Hawks, Hearne, Morgan, Torrance, Vannier, and Messrs. P. Blumer, P. Carter, F. de Pencier, Grant, Ryley, Whitney.

"Is it a fact that your mother-in-law threw herself out of the third-story window and you did nothing to restrain her?" "Excuse me; I went to the first story to catch her, but she had already passed!"—Il Diavolo Rosa.

Brief City News.

Mrs. Wm. F. Brugman entertained the Ancient Priscillas Tuesday afternoon at her home, "El Roble."

The Modern Priscillas were entertained yesterday afternoon by Mrs. Campbell of Central avenue.

The Ladies' Aid society of the Congregational church met Tuesday afternoon at the church annex, twenty-eight of the members being present.

Mrs. Frances Rowley of Long Beach has purchased through the agency of Roth & Seely the A. W. Miller house on Central avenue near Lima, and will take possession in the near future.

The Ladies' Musical Club will meet in the northwest room of the new school building next Monday afternoon, arrangements having been made to hold the meetings of the club there.

The Home Telephone Company has completed a special trunk line direct to Los Angeles, thereby giving Sierra Madre patrons direct communication without the necessity of messages being transmitted via Monrovia and El Monte, thus greatly improving its already excellent service.

Wednesday evening a number of the friends of Mr. J. W. Keys called upon him so suddenly that he was taken completely by surprise. Progressive finch was played, Mr. and Mrs. Kersting being the prize winners, while his honor, the mayor, carried off the booby prize in triumph.

Mr. and Mrs. S. R. G. Twycross will leave next Monday for Portland, Maine, and Cedar Grove, Maine, where they will visit their parents, stopping en route at Chicago and Boston. After visiting there, they will, on their return trip, spend a short time at Washington, D. C., and at that place take a boat for Jamestown, visiting the exposition. They travel via the Santa Fe line to and from Chicago.

Woman's Club.

The club was delightfully entertained at its fifth regular meeting by the Glee Club of the State Normal school, who rendered the following programme:

PART ONE.

- I. "Should He Upbraid," from "Taming of the Shrew," the Glee Club.
- II. "A Summer Girl," Sargent, Misses Sevier, Harris, Brobst and Norris.
- III. (a) "My Lady Chlo," Leighter, (b) "Mammy's Lullaby," Jamison.
- IV. Childhood Songs, from "The Daisy Chain," Miss Savage.
- V. "Water Lillies," Linders, the Glee Club.

PART TWO.

"Flora's Holiday." A cycle of old English melodies. Soloists, Miss Mary Cook, Miss Nicolena Johnson, Miss Marjory Curtis, Miss Myrtle Blewett, accompanist.

Under the able direction of Miss Jennie Hagen, the fresh girlish voices sang every number with spirit and sympathy, and one can scarcely say which number was most charming. Perhaps the audience were particularly pleased with the negro melodies.

In the second part, the girls garlanded with wreaths of spring-time flowers, were the embodiment of the May-day festival whose songs they sang. All of the soloists were warmly applauded, and with reason; for they sang the old English melodies with the sincerity and grace which they required.

Miss Savage's rendering of the two child songs, "If No One Ever Marries Me" and "How Do You Like to Go Up In a Swing" is worthy of special mention, for they were rendered with all the exquisite abandon of the child spirit.

After adjournment, the Glee Club were guided by Misses Torrance and Rice to the Sierra Madre Hotel, on whose ample porches they were entertained in turn at an informal "spread," furnished by the directors of the Woman's Club, the program committee, assisted by Mrs. Collins, acting as hostesses. Having partaken of the dainties that delight the hearts of school girls, they reluctantly turned cityward, unanimously declaring Sierra Madre "the loveliest place," and the club ladies "just the dearest."

Their formal leave-taking, however, was stamped with the noble spirit of their director, Miss Hagen; when, grouped at the foot of the hotel steps, she sang as good-bye to their entertainers, the song from "Pippa Passes."

Our Coast Defenses.

"The United States has the strongest coast defenses of any country," said Gen. MacArthur at Seattle the other day. "On the Pacific coast they are not adequately manned, but they are well located and the equipment is of the best and in good condition."

Breaks the Record.

A record of the number of immigrants arriving at New York in a single day was broken last Friday. Fourteen steamships brought into the harbor 20,794 immigrants from nearly every section of the civilized world. This exceeded by fully 5000 the largest number ever landed here in a single day. From Naples five steamers brought 8627 steerage passengers.

LOOKING FOR TROUBLE.

Shaw Says War For Control of Pacific Is Inevitable.

In a speech at a dinner of the Worcester, Mass., board of trade, Leslie M. Shaw, former secretary of the treasury, declared war for the control of the Pacific ocean was inevitable.

"I do not wish to pose as a prophet," he said, "but do you suppose the Pacific will always be a peaceful ocean? God grant that it may. We have not a collier, transport, powder or supplies to last for forty-eight hours. Other nations have.

"There are many ships in the merchant service of foreign states which are under contract to leave the path of commerce at a moment's notice to enter that of war. We have none such as these.

"As sure as Anglo-Saxon blood runs red, there is to be an awful war. There are two nations that can contest for the Pacific and this war will be settled at an awful cost."

Mr. Shaw appealed to business men to take a business interest in governmental affairs.

Merry Day At Arcadia,

"Lucky" Baldwin's "Great White City" was a lively place last Saturday when the great hosts of Shriners took possession. There was a variety of amusements and attractions at Arcadia and those who sought quiet were compelled to look for it elsewhere. There was a continuous band concert; ball games, bronco busting, races, burro rides, straw rides over the famous ranch, and between the hours of 11 and 4 a continuous feast of barbecued flesh, prepared in the open after the fashion of the Spanish period.

Arcadia is talking of one thousand population in another year. The time is coming when Monrovia and Arcadia will practically be one town. And then Duarte will have to come in out of the wet.—El Monte Gazette.

South Dakota claims that there is no reign of graft in the city councils of that state, as twenty-five of the cities having a population of one thousand each, have for the past eight years conducted their affairs on the initiative and referendum plan. The mere existence of the right to veto the acts of the city councils being usually effective without any steps in the initiative being taken.—San Fernando Valley Press.

M. Lawrence, who, for the past eighteen years has been in charge of E. J. (Lucky) Baldwin's hotels, is to be relieved of the management of the Oakwood. As nearly as can be learned the Oakwood has not been a large money maker for the past years, but the prospects for the future were exceedingly bright. Mr. Lawrence hoped to profit by the experience of the past and would not bid up as high on rental as did Doyle Brothers, and as a consequence they secured the lease on the hotel. It is expected that as soon as the race course is completed and races are on, that the income of the hotel with all its side issues, will be large. C. H. Peoples has been the manager of the Oakwood under Mr. Lawrence. Mr. Trevalin is the new manager under the Doyles. He is the builder of the new race track.—El Monte Gazette.

QUESTION OF LICENSE.

license would be detrimental to the prosperity of our infant city. The class of people we are seeking to attract are home-builders, and many of the most desirable representatives of this class would assuredly prefer to go to some other place, where their boys were protected against the perils of the liquor traffic.

"Never was there a greater fallacy than that the liquor traffic in any form ever helps the prosperity of a city. Its influence is all in the other direction. Some years ago Long Beach and Santa Monica had the same question before them. Long Beach put its foot upon the liquor traffic. Santa Monica gave it a door of entrance. Look at these two places today if you want an object lesson on the helpful influence of temperance, and of the blighting influence of complicity in the liquor traffic.

"Third. Another argument against the granting of this license is that it would put our fair city in a lower class. It would be counted in by the sporting class as among the road-house places. The automobiles and electric cars would bring an undesirable element from the city, who now pass us by because of the difficulty of getting liquid refreshments. We would find to our sorrow that the character of the place would become gradually changed, and that the very kind of people we want most would seek out places of a higher grade.

"Fourth. Again it cannot be denied that the granting of this license would mean the giving of a foothold to one of the greatest enemies to social well-being. Let no one imagine that the encroachments of the liquor traffic would stop with the granting of a hotel license. Further concessions would be asked for; and we would soon find ourselves in the situation of the tailor who gave an elephant permission to warm his trunk in his shop. The elephant stuck his trunk in at the partly open door; then he got his head in; after that he pushed in his shoulders; and finally his whole body followed, and the poor tailor had to vacate his own premises. So will it be with the liquor monster. Give it an inch and it will take an ell. The only wise thing to do is to check it when it makes its first advances. When it insinuates its trunk into our premises let us hit it and hit it so hard that it will know better than to make the attempt again.

"Fifth. The granting of this license will mean that we will be forced as a community to face a delicate and difficult problem, namely the problem of seeing that this ordinance is enforced. The liquor business is a hard thing to regulate. And the very fact that it needs regulation implies that it possesses an element of danger. The safe way, the only safe way, to regulate it is to keep it out.

"Sixth. The strongest argument of all is that the granting of the license asked for would be against the interests of social morality. It is a noteworthy fact that the few who refused to sign this petition of protest did so mainly because of money considerations. They thought that this concession to the liquor business would be for the furtherance of our commercial interests. On the other hand most of those who signed the petition did so mainly on moral grounds. They believed that the coming of the liquor business would bring evil and evil only. And they are right. A tree is known by its fruits. Look where you will and you will find that a long train of evils follow the liquor business.

"But how shall we characterize the man who puts dollars above souls. If one boy should be led astray by the legalized temptations which you put in his way, tell me what would compensate for that, especially if he should be your boy. Does anyone say: but our young men will get drunk anyway; that they will find some 'blind pig' that will supply them with the article. If they do, the fault will not be yours provided you have not given to the business legal sanction, and put the temptation in their way. But if you have, upon your head will rest the responsibilities of his business.

"Seventh. And last of all this license ought not to be granted for the good reason that citizens of Sierra Madre are against it. I have no need to remind this honorable board that it is their duty to register in law the expressed opinions of those whom they represent. You are trustees of a great trust; and I am confident that you will not be recreant to your obligations. A vote in favor of hotel license would mean the overriding of the will of the community on whose behalf you have been called to legislate.

"It would also mean the driving of a dividing wedge into the community itself, and the inauguration of a period of agitation and strife; and for that condition of things your action would be responsible. I utter no threats, but I would like to give this bit of information that if this expression of the public will should be disregarded something is likely to happen.

"But I am persuaded better things of you, although I thus speak. In closing I would simply remind you that to you it has been given to lay foundations for the future. You are giving to civic affairs in this new city the shape which they are likely to retain for a long time to come. It therefore behooves you to act wisely, and with due consideration of the interests involved. I have no doubt your decision will be one which will settle this vexed question so emphatically that no one will dare to reopen it for years to come; and that it will keep our beautiful foot-hill city among the places which stand for morality, for home protection, and for the highest order of citizenship."

After the address a spirited and at times somewhat acrimonious debate took place between citizens present and members of the board, who felt that some of the remarks made were in the nature of threats, and altogether uncalled for, the ordinance having just been introduced and no report made by committee.

The gentleman making the application, Mr. C. O. Hall of Hotel Shirley, desired the privilege of serving liquors with regular meals, during certain restricted meal hours, and was willing to give bonds for the proper exercise of his privilege, said bonds to be forfeited in case of any violation of the terms of the license. He feels that such privilege is essential to the successful operation of the hotel business in this city.

The matter will come up for action at the next meeting of the board.

A communication was received from E. H. Freeman in regard to his petition for a pool room license. A petition was also received by the board protesting against the granting of this license. Ordinance No. 10, the pool room ordinance was amended by the addition of a clause prohibiting youths less than eighteen years of age from entering or

A Printer's Devil

Or the fellow who "worked at the printin' bizness some forty-odd year ago" may not know the reasons for the present-day advanced printing prices, but there are reasons, and good ones, too. Listen.

¶ Every grade of paper costs more.

¶ Copper has gone up, making an increased cost of half-tones and electrotypes.

¶ Lead and type are higher priced.

¶ The increased cost of steel and iron makes printing machinery more expensive.

¶ Hours of labor have been reduced from ten to nine and finally to eight.

¶ Wages in every department have increased.

The grocery man wants more for his groceries; the clothier wants more for his clothes; the lumber dealer wants more for his lumber; the coal dealer wants more for his coal; in fact, the price of existence has increased generally.

ODD FELLOWS MEET.

Grand Lodge of State in Session in Los Angeles.

Tuesday of this week the first session of the grand lodge of Odd Fellows was held in Turner hall in Los Angeles. There are about 800 representatives present and the following grand officers: Theodore A. Bell, grand master; F. B. Ogden, deputy grand master; John E. Baker, grand warden; H. D. Richardson, grand secretary; James W. Harris, grand treasurer; Karl C. Brueck and W. W. Phelps, grand representatives; C. O. Burton, John Glasson, J. F. Nichols, grand trustees; John Morton, John Thompson, W. W. Watson, H. C. Howard, S. E. Moreland, trustees Odd Fellows' home; Rev. B. D. Naylor, grand chaplain; E. N. Sturtevant, grand marshal; Jacob M. Kearth, grand conductor; E. N. Killam, grand guardian; M. P. Forbes, grand herald.

Grand Master Theodore A. Bell says: "To the rank and file, rather than to those in high office, belongs the credit for the wonderful growth of the order in the last year. There was a net increase in the state in 1906 of 2,657, bringing the total membership in the state up to 41,000. It has been through the individual members of the subordinate lodges that this has been accomplished. Grand masters and their deputies may suggest, may encourage and lead, but it is the inofficial members that bring in the applications, and they it is who visit the sick and attend to the actual work of the order."

It was shown by the report of the grand treasurer that last year there was paid out for general relief the sum of $250,000, and for special relief for San Francisco earthquake sufferers, $150,000. Rebekah reports show quite as large a proportionate gain in the last year as the Odd Fellows. Eight lodges were added to the order in this state, making a total of 388, with a total membership of 18,406, a gain in membership in a year of 1,877. Officers of the assembly are: Mrs. Jessie W.
